

IR Search 2020 –Centro de Investigación y Docencia Económicas (CIDE)

The Department of International Studies at CIDE seeks to hire Tenure-track Professors in International Relations at its Santa Fe campus (Mexico City). The starting date is flexible from January 2020. The positions are open with regard to subfield, but the Department is especially interested in strengthening the following areas:

1. International organization
2. Asia-Pacific and Latin American regions
3. Public opinion and international relations
4. Foreign policy (in particular, comparative foreign policy)
5. International political economy

Candidates must have a doctoral degree at the time of hire. At least a basic level of Spanish is required, and candidates are expected to become proficient within a reasonable period of time. Hiring is dependent on the candidate's ability to work legally in Mexico.

Interested applicants should fill out the form in the following link and upload the required documents (<http://encuestas.cide.edu/index.php/441939?lang=es-MX>).

- Cover letter
- Curriculum Vitae
- Statement of purpose including future teaching and research agendas
- Writing sample not exceeding 50 pages
- Teaching evaluations (if available)

In addition, all applicants must arrange for three letters of recommendation to be sent by those writing the recommendation to the following email address: contrataciones.dei@cide.edu

The deadline for submission of all required documents is November 1, 2019. Complete applications received by that date are guaranteed full consideration. Interviews will start in November 2019. Professor Mark Aspinwall is available to answer questions (mark.aspinwall@cide.edu).

CIDE is a public social sciences research institute oriented towards high quality research and teaching at graduate and undergraduate level. Faculty members are expected to publish in top journals and presses and to contribute to the department's teaching, outreach and institution-building duties. Teaching load is two courses per year, minimum.

At the DEI we seek to encourage equality and diversity in our hiring process, so all applications that meet the established requirements are guaranteed equal treatment, without regard to race, nationality, sexual orientation or identity.
